

Alumnus of the Week

Name: Emeka Chukuma

Year of Completion: 2013

Programme of Study: Masters of Business Administration (MBA)

Job Title: International Business Development Executive

Employer: Randox Laboratories Ltd

What you liked about Hertfordshire Business School?

The Hertfordshire MBA significantly enhanced my business acumen on a local and international level which has been beneficial to my current role. I particularly enjoyed the practical business consulting experience I gained from the course which highlights the extensive network of the Business School.

I also appreciated the exceptional research facilities of the Business School and the support from lecturers and the MBA team.

What you do in your job?

Working at Randox Laboratories gives me the opportunity to travel from London to Nigeria on a monthly basis to discuss with high profile medical professionals about Randox Laboratories key products. My role is primarily focused on the public sector which requires constant communication and meetings with the Ministry of Health and its subsidiary agencies. This role also requires a great deal of networking and referrals from medical and laboratory directors across the country.

Whom you would like to connect with in the Alumni Network?

I would like to connect with fellow alumni that have worked in the health industry in various positions to discuss their views on current affairs.
