The woman on the left is partially visible, looking towards the camera. They appear to be in a meeting or discussion. The image is overlaid with several blue diagonal lines.

Business Psychology

MSc(Hons)

This course is ideal if you want to develop the skills and knowledge you need to apply psychological principles within organisations, and will appeal whether you have a business or psychology background. At the end of the course, you'll be equipped for a variety of careers including human resources, consultancy and business psychology.

If you're a business student and haven't yet chosen a specific career path, you'll find the combination of skills gained through this Master's degree will distinguish you from other business graduates in the employment market.

You'll begin by studying the following taught modules during semesters A and B:

- Strategic Management Perspectives
- Behaviour and Marketing Creativity
- Resource Management in Organisations
- Selection and Assessment
- Individual and Organisational Learning
- Human Potential and Performance
- Organisations and Change
- Research and Professional Skills
- Consultancy Skills

In semester C (May-August), you'll undertake a project, normally conducted in an external organisation. You'll be supervised by a member of staff from either the School of Psychology or the Business School, depending on your chosen topic area. The project provides you with the opportunity to develop your consultancy and research skills and to put your academic studies into practice.

Course length:

Full-time 1 calendar year
Part-time 1 or 2 days per week
over a maximum of 4 years

Entry requirements:

A 2.1 honours degree (or overseas equivalent) in business studies or psychology, or from a programme of study which includes substantial business or management studies. We'll also consider your application if you don't have these requirements but do have two years' relevant work experience.
