Job Title: Training & Development Specialist

Employer: Bosch

What you liked about Hertfordshire Business School?

The variety of the courses really allowed me to decide the areas that I found most enjoyable in the field of HR. The first year which provided exposure to other modules outside of HR (such as Finance & Marketing) also gave me a well-rounded business perspective which is vital when understanding the roles and challenges of different functions in the workplace. The course gave me the practical skills to perform in my role today, especially the presentation aspects and consultancy skills.

What you do in your job?

Having worked in a country wide strategic HR role for Bosch UK, in February I moved into the Training and Development team as an internal Business Partner / Consultant for allocated business units with responsibility for recommending training programmes that support individual and/or department development requirements. In addition, it is my role to champion and increase Continuous Improvement Process (CIP) activities at all Bosch sites, delivering relevant training, assisting managers identifying CIP opportunities and facilitating group workshops across the country.
